Sample Lost Property Act (Fictional)

Section 1. Short title.

This Act may be called the Sample Lost Property Act. It is a fictional law used only for demonstrating a document assistant.

Section 2. Definitions.

In this Act, 'found item' means any movable object picked up by a person who is not its owner. 'Station' means the nearest police station of the area where the item was found.

Section 3. Duty to report.

A person who finds an item worth more than 500 sample units shall hand it over to the station within 7 days of finding it. Failure to do so is an offence under Section 9.

Section 4. Register of found items.

The station house officer shall record every found item in the Found Item Register with the date, a description, and the name of the finder.

Section 5. Public notice.
For items worth more than 5,000 sample units, the station shall display a notice for 30 days at the station notice board before any disposal.

Section 6. Return to owner.
The owner may claim the item by giving proof of ownership. The station shall record the claim and release the item against a signed receipt.

Section 7. Unclaimed items.
An item not claimed within 90 days shall be given to the finder if the finder asks for it in writing, otherwise it shall be auctioned by the station under the direction of the district officer.

Section 8. Perishable items.
Perishable items may be disposed of immediately and the reason recorded in the register.

Section 9. Penalty.

Failure to report a found item under Section 3 is punishable with a fine of up to 2,000 sample units.

Section 1. Short title. (annex)

This Act may be called the Sample Lost Property Act. It is a fictional law used only for demonstrating a document assistant. This Act may be called the Sample Lost Property Act. It is a fictional law used only for demonstrating a document assistant.

Section 2. Definitions. (annex)

In this Act, 'found item' means any movable object picked up by a person who is not its owner. 'Station' means the nearest police station of the area where the item was found. In this Act, 'found item' means any movable object picked up by a person who is not its owner. 'Station' means the nearest police station of the area where the item was found.

Section 3. Duty to report. (annex)

A person who finds an item worth more than 500 sample units shall hand it over to the station within 7 days of finding it. Failure to do so is an offence under Section 9. A person who finds an item worth more than 500 sample units shall hand it over to the station within 7 days of finding it. Failure to do so is an offence under Section 9.

Section 4. Register of found items. (annex)

The station house officer shall record every found item in the Found Item Register with the date, a description, and the name of the finder. The station house officer shall record every found item in the Found Item Register with the date, a description, and the name of the finder.

Section 5. Public notice. (annex)

For items worth more than 5,000 sample units, the station shall display a notice for 30 days at the station notice board before any disposal. For items worth more than 5,000 sample units, the station shall display a notice for 30 days at the station notice board before any disposal.

Section 6. Return to owner. (annex)

The owner may claim the item by giving proof of ownership. The station shall record the claim and release the item against a signed receipt. The owner may claim the item by giving proof of ownership. The station shall record the claim and release the item against a signed receipt.

Section 7. Unclaimed items. (annex)

An item not claimed within 90 days shall be given to the finder if the finder asks for it in writing, otherwise it shall be auctioned by the station under the direction of the district officer. An item not claimed within 90 days shall be given to the finder if the finder asks for it in writing, otherwise it shall be auctioned by the station under the direction of the district officer.

Section 8. Perishable items. (annex)

Perishable items may be disposed of immediately and the reason recorded in the register. Perishable items may be disposed of immediately and the reason recorded in the register.

Section 9. Penalty. (annex)

Failure to report a found item under Section 3 is punishable with a fine of up to 2,000 sample units. Failure to report a found item under Section 3 is punishable with a fine of up to 2,000 sample units.